01 About Tech & Comms

Tech & Comms is an initiative of The Comms Boardroom (TCBR) to close the gap between what students are taught about communications and what the profession looks like on the ground. It is not a lecture series. It is a set of honest conversations, led by people currently doing the work, built around three things every Mass Communication student deserves to hear before they graduate: communications in the real world, media intelligence and proving value, and building a personal brand.

02 Why you are on the panel

The three talks cover the profession as it is: the real job, media intelligence, and personal branding. The panel shows students the landscape they are stepping into.

Your angle is the shift from traditional media to You Media. Media is no longer only in the hands of newspapers, broadcasters and blogs. Individuals now have their own platforms, and that is where much of the real media now happens: newspapers and blogs often take their stories from what individuals post. People stream instead of waiting for scheduled programmes, and the gatekeepers of information have changed. Movements like #EndSARS in 2020 showed how people can mobilise without anyone sitting down to plan it. Students need to understand this new normal, because it is where they will communicate.

03 Your angle on the panel

- How media moved from newspapers, broadcasters and blogs to individuals with their own platforms.
- Individuals as media: creators and commentators whose posts newspapers and blogs now follow for stories.
- Streaming and live content replacing scheduled TV and radio, and where audiences' attention has gone.
- Who the gatekeepers of information are now, and how information spreads and mobilises people.
- What this means for brands and communicators: speed, credibility, verification and working with creators.
- How students can become their own media, responsibly.

04 Questions the moderator may ask you

The host moderates. You won't be asked every question; they're here so you can prepare.

1. OPENING You talk about "You Media". What do you mean by that?
2. TOPIC 01 How different is today's media landscape from what students are taught in class?
3. NEW LANDSCAPE Who are the gatekeepers of information today, and how did that change?
4. NEW LANDSCAPE Newspapers and blogs now pick up stories from individuals' posts. What does that mean for journalism and PR?
5. NEW LANDSCAPE What did moments like #EndSARS in 2020 show us about how people mobilise through media?
6. TOPIC 02 If anyone can be media, how should brands keep track of and respond to what's said about them?
7. NEW LANDSCAPE Everybody streams now. How should communicators follow where attention is going?
8. TOPIC 03 How can a student become their own media without losing credibility?
9. CLOSING What one skill should students build now to do well in the You Media era?

05 What students should leave with

- Media power has moved from institutions to individuals and online communities.
- Speed matters, but credibility and verification matter more.
- Students can build their own platforms now.

06 Tone and approach

- Speak from your own work. Real examples, real numbers where you can share them, and real mistakes land better than definitions.
- Keep it Nigerian. Show how the work looks here, not only how the textbooks describe it.
- Talk with the students, not at them. Short stories, plain language, and room for questions.
- Leave them with something to do this week, not only something to think about.

07 What we need from you

- A short bio (60–80 words) and a clear headshot, for the programme and our social posts.
- Slides are optional. If you use them, please send them a day before so we can load them on the hall system.
- Your preferred social handles, so we can tag you when we share highlights.
- Any equipment you need (for example, internet access for a live demo).

Thank you for giving your time to the next generation of communicators.
